

Table of Contents

Preface	11
Gilberto Corbellini
Summary	17
Preliminary caveat	21
A concise introduction	23
1.1 Form and substance in Constitutions	23
1.2 Basic principles and ordinary laws	28
1.3 Inadequate institutional structure	29
Part 1. Analysis and criticism (pars destruens)	33
1.1 The seven flaws of democracies	33
1.2 Assumption confirmed	67
Part 2. Our meta-reform proposal (pars construens)	69
2.1 «Rationalization» and «Extension» of democracy	70
2.2 Graphic explanations	73
2.3 Some hints to procedural matters	76
2.4 Public experts on politics	79
2.5 Constitutionally oriented instrumentalism	89
2.6 «Epist-» misunderstandings and inadequacies	90
2.7 Citizens: equals in power, not in capability; or, against the sortition of lawmakers	102
2.8 No technocracy, no Platonism	109

2.9	Scientification of politics: a shaky concept	113
2.10	Legitimacy	115
2.11	Reassessing the expert-citizenry-democracy nexus	118
2.12	Accountability	129
2.13	Less semblance, more substance	130
2.14	«Science courts» and the like: unworkable and unnecessary	131
2.15	Independent Authorities as partial ‘experiments’ in Rationalized Democracy	134
2.16	REDemo as a radical project – better constructed than various alternatives	143
2.17	A few possible examples of REDemo at work	162
2.18	Benefits of renewed democracy, i.e. relieving its seven shortcomings	167
2.19	Democratic societies trust science and scientists	183
2.20	A big challenge for public experts	186
	Conclusion	191
	A very short coda	193
	Acknowledgments	195
	Addendum. Further papers on the reform project, and on a roadmap to implement it	197
	List of Figures	199
	References	201
	Index of names	233