

SUMMARY

PREFACE	ix
INTRODUCTION	1
PART I
FROM MORAL AUTONOMY TO PERSONAL AUTONOMY
I. MORAL AUTONOMY	9
1. Autonomy and Freedom	9
2. The Role of Reason	12
3. Action and Normativity	14
4. The Deep Deliberator	17
5. The Reason View	20
II. PERSONAL AUTONOMY: THE PROCEDURAL ACCOUNT
1. Affinities between Moral Autonomy and Personal Autonomy	25
2. The Hierarchical Model	27
3. Reasons for Hierarchy	29
4. The Normativity of the Historical Process of Desire Formation	31
5. Problems with the “Real Self View”	34
6. The Historicist Condition of Reflection	36
III. PERSONAL AUTONOMY: THE SUBSTANTIVE ACCOUNT
1. Acting according to the True and the Good	41
2. Strong Normative Competence	44
3. Weak Normative Competence	49
PART II
AUTONOMY AS A SOCIAL CONCEPT
IV. THE DEONTIC STRUCTURE OF THE SPACE OF REASONS	57
1. The Question of Normativity	57
2. The Primacy of Inferentialism	59

3. The “Space of Reasons”	62
4. McDowell: Experience and the Space of Reasons	65
5. The “Social” Space of Reasons	67
V. AUTONOMY AND SCOREKEEPING
1. No Motivation Necessary	71
2. Normative Compulsion	74
3. The Normative Structure of Content	78
4. The Dimensions of Justification	83
5. Practical Reasoning	87
VI. POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS	95
1. The “Recognitional” Account of Autonomy	95
2. Autonomy and Communicative Action	98
3. The Claim for Truth	104
4. Authenticity and Intersubjectivity	107
5. Reason, Identity and the Public Sphere	110
6. Attitude-dependence and Content-dependence	113
7. To Say “No”	115
REFERENCES	121