

Table of contents

Scholarly Communication and Academic Presses: an Introduction
Anna Maria Tammaro .....	1-8
Tinkers and Tailors: complementarity between university presses and libraries
Michael A. Keller .....	9-16
The Self-Archiving Initiative
Stevan Harnad .....	17-23
The Roquade Project. The library as a catalyst of change in scholarly publishing
Bas Savenije .....	25-35
Legal Deposit of Electronic Publications
Giovanni Bergamin .....	37-39
EMIS - the Involvement of EMS in Publishing Mathematics
Bernd Wegner .....	41-45
The Role of the Publisher in Scholarly Communication
Anthony Watkinson .....	47-55
Change in Universities: the effects for libraries, academics and publishers
Ian Winkworth .....	57-63
Publication vs Communication?: Searching for an identity for the University of Florence e-Press
Anna Maria Tammaro .....	65-73
“Reti Medievali”: an initiative of new communication of historical knowledge
Andrea Zorzi .....	75-78
A Framework for Italian Digital Libraries: the Dafne Project
Jacopo Di Cocco, Laura Tallandini, Anna Maria Tammaro .....	79-85
The Limits of Innovation: A publisher’s view about the impact of digital publishing on academic. communication and research diffusion
Enrico Francesconi .....	87-92

JOP. Journal of the Pancreas: a model for the dissemination of scientific information and sharing of knowledge in the field of Pancreatoloy and Diabetology
Raffaele Pezzilli, Generoso Uomo, Antonio Maria Morselli-Labate . . . . .	93-95
E-communication among Italian Zoologists: two years of experience with the “Vertebrati” mailing list
Claudio Gnoli . . . . .	97-102
Scholarly Communication and Academic Presses: “The Nexus Network Journal”
Kim Williams . . . . .	103-106
Academic Presses and Integrated Systems : towards a new perspective
Antonella Cosetti, Gian Franco Greppi, Massimo Valdini . . . . .	107-109
Conclusions
Hans Geleijnse . . . . .	111-112