

Contributors

BEATRICE FALCUCCI has a PhD from the University of Florence. She was Italian fellow at the American Academy in Rome and was granted a scholarship by Fondazione Einaudi. Currently, she is a post-doc researcher at the University of L'Aquila. Her works revolve around colonial culture in Italy, the construction of Italian national identity, and Italian and European colonial museology.

FABRIZIO DE DONNO is senior lecturer in Italian and comparative literature at Royal Holloway, University of London. His publications include the special issue Colonial and Postcolonial Italy (2006) and the volume Italian Orientalism: Nationhood, Cosmopolitanism and the Cultural Politics of Identity (2019).

AGLAIA DE ANGELI is lecturer in modern Chinese history at Queen's University Belfast. One of her publications as a sinologist specialized in the social and legal history of Republican China is Des femmes et du crime. She is principal investigator of the ESRC project: Competing Imperialism in North-east Asia, 1894-1953.

DAVIDE TRENTACOSTE obtained a dual PhD on diplomatic relations between Medici Tuscany and Safavid Persia in the seventeenth century from the University of Teramo and the Université Sorbonne Nouvelle Paris 3. His research interests mainly concern Mediterranean history in the modern age and the relationship between Europe and the Levant, on which he has published several articles.

FUP Best Practice in Scholarly Publishing (DOI 10.36253/fup_best_practice)

Beatrice Falucci, Emanuele Giusti, Davide Trentacoste (edited by), Rereading Travellers to the East. Shaping Identities and Building the Nation in Post-unification Italy, © 2022 Author(s), CC BY 4.0, published by Firenze University Press, ISBN 978-88-5518-579-0, DOI 10.36253/978-88-5518-579-0

LUCA ORLANDI is an architectural historian living in Istanbul where he teaches history of architecture at Özyeğin University. He collaborates with international universities, both in Turkey and abroad, and his fields of interests are: Ottoman architecture and Sinan, Galata and the Genoese colonies, Turkish architecture and travelogues on the Levant.

LAURA DE GIORGI is professor of modern and contemporary Chinese history at the Ca' Foscari University in Venice. Her publications include: "In the Shadow of Marco Polo: Writing about China in Fascist Italy", Journal of Modern Italian Studies (2010); Contact Zones in China: Multidisciplinary Perspectives (2020).

ALESSANDRO TRIPEPI obtained his PhD from the University of Milan Department of Historical Studies in 2020. Since 2021 he has been a post-doc fellow in the Tacitroots research group in the same department. His first monograph is scheduled for publication in 2022.

EMANUELE GIUSTI obtained a dual PhD in 2021 from the University of Florence and the École Normale Supérieure de Paris. He is now a post-doc researcher at the University of Florence. His first monograph, dealing with the reception of Iranian monuments in eighteenth-century European culture from an intellectual history perspective, is scheduled for 2023.

GIOVANNI TARANTINO is an early modern intellectual historian at the University of Florence, a research associate at the ARC Centre for the History of Emotions and Chair of the PIMo COST Action. Recent publications include "The Sky in Place of the Nile: Climate, Religious Unrest and Scapegoating in Post-Tridentine Apulia" (Environment and History 28.3, 2022) and (with Paola von Wyss-Giacosa) Through Your Eyes: Religious Alterity and the Early Modern Western Imagination (2021).