

Authors

Stefano Aloe (PhD), associate professor at the University of Verona, is a historian of Russian literature and of Slavic-Italian cultural relations. A member of the Board of Directors of the International Dostoevsky Society and managing editor of the journal Dostoevsky Studies, he is author of four monographs and more than 150 scientific publications. e-mail: stefano.aloe@univr.it

Carol Apollonio, author, editor, and co-editor of books and articles about Russian literature, including Simply Chekhov, Dostoevsky's Secrets, and The New Russian Dostoevsky, serves as President of the International Dostoevsky Society. She teaches at Duke University in Durham, North Carolina, USA. e-mail: carol.apollonio@duke.edu

Konstantin Abrekovich Barsht (PhD in philology), is professor and leading research fellow at the Institute of Russian Literature (“The Pushkin House”) of the Russian Academy of Sciences in St. Peterburg. He is the author of more than 200 scholarly publications. e-mail: konstantin_barsht@pushdom.ru

Marcin Maksymilian Borowski, is Head of the Department of Russian Literature and Culture at the Institute of Slavic Philology, University of Wrocław, Poland, Adjunct. e-mail: marcin.borowski@uwr.edu.pl

Andrei Borisovich Shishkin (Chichkine), is associate professor of Slavic Studies at the University of Salerno, Italy. His research focuses primarily on XIX and XX century Russian literature and in the work and heritage of Viacheslav Ivanov. e-mail: chichkine@gmail.com

FUP Best Practice in Scholarly Publishing (DOI 10.36253/fup_best_practice)

Dar'ja Farafonova, Laura Salmon, Stefano Aloe (edited by), F.M. Dostoevsky: Humor, Paradoxality, Deconstruction, © 2023 Author(s), CC BY 4.0, published by Firenze University Press, ISBN 979-12-215-0122-3, DOI 10.36253/979-12-215-0122-3

Sara Dickinson is associate professor of Russian literature and culture at the University of Genoa. Her current research focuses on the history of women's writing in the Russian Empire. She is also currently President of the Association for Women in Slavic Studies (AWSS) and a co-founder of "19v.: Working Group on Russian Culture." e-mail: sara.dickinson@unige.it

Daria Farafonova (PhD in Philology; PhD in Italian language, literature and culture) is adjunct professor at the University of Macerata and at the University of Urbino. In addition to the volume Pirandello and the 'classical moralists' (2017), she has published numerous articles in Russian, Italian, and English. e-mail: storm247@yandex.ru

Christoph Garstka is professor for Russian cultural studies at the Ruhr-University Bochum, Germany. He completed his PhD at the University of Heidelberg in 2002 where he worked as an assistant professor for Slavic studies afterwards. e-mail: christoph.garstka@rub.de

Maria Candida Ghidini is associate professor of Russian literature at the University of Parma. She has been interested in the nexus of philosophy, linguistics and literature in early twentieth-century Russia (Vyacheslav Ivanov and Gustav Shpet) and the work of Dostoevsky. e-mail: mariacandida.ghidini@unipr.it

Alexandr Nikolaevich Isakov, born in 1957, associate professor of the Department of philosophical anthropology at the Institute of philosophy at St. Petersburg State University from 1994 to 2019. Significant texts: Essays on Phenomenological Philosophy (1997, co-authored), Ethos of consciousness, (2001, co-authored). e-mail: aisakow57@mail.ru

Alexey Ashirovich Kazakov (PhD) is professor at the Department of Russian and Foreign Literature, Faculty of Philology, Tomsk State University. e-mail: akaz75@mail.ru

Vladimir Alekseevich Kotel'nikov (PhD in Philology), is professor, leading research fellow at "The Pushkin House" in St. Peterburg. His areas of scholarly interests include: the works and heritage of Dostoevsky, Leont'ev, Goncharov, and others. He is the author of more than 300 scholarly publications. e-mail: vladilogos@mail.ru

Laura Salmon (PhD in Slavic studies) is full professor of Russian and of Translation Theory at the University of Genoa. Her main fields of research are humor studies, translation theory, and Russian literature. She has published dozens of papers and several books; she has been awarded three prizes for literary translation. e-mail: salmon@unige.it

Raffaella Vassena is associate professor of Russian literature at the Milano State University. Her research focuses primarily on late 19th-century Russian literature, with particular attention given to the social role of literary institutions and adaptations of classics. She is the author of two monographs on Dostoevsky. e-mail: raffaella.vassena@unimi.it

Jasmina Vojvodić is professor at the Department of East Slavic Languages and Literatures (University of Zagreb). She is author of three monographic books. She also edited nine collections of articles on Russian literature. She is editor-in-chief of the journal Umjetnost riječi. e-mail: jvojvodi@ffzg.hr

